Large Crowd Attracted By Commencement

Program at St. Dominic's Hall.

Pupils of the Academy of the Sacred Heart of Mary Receive Their Prizes.

The commencement exercises of the Academy of the Sacred Heart of Mary brought a large audience to St. Dominic's Hall last night. The little girls, pupils of the academy, gave an interesting program of musical selections and allegorical tableaux. A selection from "Faust," rendered by Misses J. Albro, M. Webster, M. King and L. O'Leary, was the inaugural feature. An amusing rondeau followed and was participated in by Misses J. Albro, M. King, N. Burke, A. Murphy, L. O'Leary and L. Dolan. A musical number, "Fairy Bells Ringing at Twilight Gray," was played by Miss F. McGuirk on the plane, with triangle and bell accompaniment.

Diplomas Conferred Upon Two Hundred and Seven.

COMMENCEMENT AT CONVENTION HALL

Addresses by Commissioner Ross, Dr. Bristol and Others.

AWARD OF SCHOLARSHIPS

Two hundred and seven young women and men last night emerged from the chrysalls of High School preparation, equipped for the stern duties of life or the more arduous studies of the academy and seminary. It was a solemn occasion in the lives of those young people, and many of them felt it to be so, while their relatives and friends who looked on evidently realized the impressiveness of their graduation even more. Convention Hall, where the graduating exercises of the Washington Hight Schools were held, contained an immense audience. Every person present probably felt an interest in one or more of the embryo citizens who occupied seats upon the stage and received diplomas, and many a proud parent expressed gratification when the ribbontied certificates, the tangible evidence of hard study and merit, were handed out. The graduates made a pretty grouping as they sat upon the stage. The girls were daintily dressed in white, occupying the front seats, and the boys, some in the uniform of the High School Cadets, others in evening dress, occupied seats in the rear. The stage was set with palms and potted plants, while overhead was stretched bunting, and colored flags and banners were hung upon the walls on every side. The colored electric lights studding the ceiling lent a warm glow to the scene, which was neightened by the summer costumes of the hundreds of ladies in the audience.

In front of the stage were seated Commissioners Wight and Ross and Messrs. Job Barnard, Jesse Wilson, Dr. Hazen, Dr. Rad-cliffe, Dr. Emery, Superintendent of Schools W.B. Powell, Dr. F. R. Lane, and a number of teachers, including Miss Edith Westcott, principal of the Western High School; Mr. P. M. Johnson, principal of the Eastern; Principal Percy S. Hughes of the

Mr. James Whelpley, president of the board of trustees, occupied a seat on the stage and invited former Mayor Matthew to get the stage and invited former mayor Matthew to get the stage and invited former mayor Matthew to get the stage and invited former mayor Matthew to get the stage and invited former mayor Matthew to get the stage and invited former mayor matthew the stage and invi G. Emery, who was in the audience, to a place beside him. Mr. Emery, who has a vivid recollection of Washington's public school system in the old days, remarked upon the contrast presented last night. He was delighted with the evidences of the substantial growth of the schools.

The Marine Band furnished music for the occasion, rendering several popular airs during the evening, all of which were ap-plauded by the audience. Soon after 8 o'clock the graduates entered the hall and marched down the main aisle to their po-

When they were seated Commissioner Ross callled the assemblage to order and prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Wallace Radeliffe. After a number by the ...arine Band, Commissioner Ross delivered the introductory address.

"The year which closes tonight," said Mr. Ross, "has been one of the most successful and prosperous in the history of the public school system of the District of Columbia. Many causes have contributed to this happy result. The appropriation committees of the two houses of Congress have shown confidence in and have recovered. shown confidence in and have recognized the importance of our school system by ap-propriating public funds for its equipment and support.

Errors in this regard have doubt-less occurred, but they have been the ex-ception and not the rule.

Statistical Showing.

"The growth of the schools may be exhibited by some statistics; During the fiscal year 1889, the number of teachers was 693. The number of teachers for the fiscal year 1900 will be 1.179. In 1889 the numbre of school buildings owned by the District was 71; the total number, including those appropriated for, is now 124. Ten years ago the total enrollment of pupils was 25,000; the enrollment for the year now closing

"It has been my privilege on former like occasions to speak of that organization so dear to the heart of every Washingtonian known as the High School Cadets.

Country's Defenders.

"Three years ago I said if ever the United States should become involved in a foreign war there would be found citizens of the District of Columbia who had been trained as members of the High School Regiment, who would, as soldiers of the republic, show the benefits of their training in that organization. Within the past year this prediction has been fulfilled. As members of the 1st District Regiment, many of our High School boys rendered efficient service in hastening the surrender of the forces of in hastening the surrender of the forces of Gen. Toral at Santiago.

"Many of them have won by their merits permanent places in the army and in the naval forces of the United States, and have reflected credit on this High School and on the District of Columbia. And tonight, while we are celebrating this annual High School festival some of the High School School festival, some of the High School School festival, some of the High School boys, under the tropical skies of far-off Luzon, are bravely facing disease and death in the defense of that flag under whose protection they were reared and educated. They are putting into practice the lessons of pairiotic devotion to their country taught them in every grade of our mabile school system.

public school system.
"I will not delay you longer. I close with heartfelt words of congratulation to these dear young people of the graduating class. They have fairly won all of the honor we can show to them tonight. May health and ### prosperity attend them always! The American Public School.

The Rev. Dr. F. M. Bristol was then introduced to elliver an address, which was frequently interrupted by applause. Dr. Bristol eulogized the American public school. He said that while the flag floats the public school must stand, and while the public school stands the flag will float. The freedom of the ballot depends upon the schools. Schools are mightier than armies and navies, and education will make the people think for themselves. Where the people are sovereign provision must be made for thorough education. Every citizen must be trained for citizenship. Education is to teach the man his power, and teach him how to use it. Teach the result teach him how to use it. Teach the pe how to use their genius and you have edu-cated them. It is the mission of our public school system to put every citizen in com-mand of his powers.

The victors on the battlefield of life, said Dr. Bristol, are those who by training, discipline and education have come to such control of their own powers as will make them victors on every field. We train an athlete three months to run one race. Dewey required the training of a lifetime to win the battle of Manila.

to win the battle of Manila.

Our own public school system has a mission to the individual, to the masses, to the citizen and to the country, and the people's integrity is to be maintained by our public school system. Seminaries educate the classes, while the public school educates the masses. Republics alone are safe in the maintenance of public schools. To secure the integrity of this public school system we must accentuate their non-political and we must accentuate their non-political and non-sectarian character. They need not be political to be patriotic, nor sectarian to be highly moral. Truth is greater than any party or church, or any school of philosophy.

In closing his remarks Dr. Bristol repeated his opening sentiment, that while the flag floats the public school must stand, and while the public school stands the flag will float.

Winners of Scholarships. At the conclusion of these remarks Superintendent Powelleannounced the winners of the scholarships. The recipients arose to their feet as their names were called and each fortunate boy or girl was
